O'Brien had bruises on his hand and body. an abrasion of the skin on the head and a scratch on the left skin. All this lent force to the story that O'Brien's death resulted from the injuries he receive i, and to de ermine the matter the doctors of the F.atbush Hospital deided to make an autopsy.

The autopsy was held in the hospital this sorning by Dr. John A. Arnold, General Medimorning by Dr. John A. Arnold, General Medical Superintendent of the inatitution; Dr. J. P. Duryes, his assistant, and Dr. Halleck Maine, senior member of the house staff.

The doctors found the organs in a fair condition except the brain, which was conge ted. To this they attribute the cause of dealt. O'Brien, they say, suffers with a very acute attack of o magazino of the brain, and is their official report, after describing the brains and marks on the body, they state:

"The above described bruises and attransons were the only evidences of violence, and in no way contributed to the cause of death."
